Shoulder Season Dining

Dining options in Big Sky are limited. It is common knowledge that in the time leading into the new ski season many restaurants close to enjoy some down time before people start to flock back to the area. The Chamber of Commerce has once again compiled the full list of which dining establishments are open, or not.

Construction Updates

Like most Montana summers, this one was full of construction projects and orange caution cones. From the on-going power line replacement in the canyon, to the cable upgrade in the canyon, Big Sky residents saw their fair share of work trucks and crewmen. With winter knocking on our front door, these projects are wrapping up for the season.

Meadow: This summer, residents in the meadow had to live with construction crews and torn up yards as Northwestern Energy worked their way through the area. This Northwestern Energy project was dedicated to upgrading 34,000 feet of underground electric distribution systems. To many people this work was both disruptive and destructive, but it was a very necessary project that the area will benefit from. All post-project cleanup should be complete by this point. If you have any remaining questions, or concerns about how your property may have been re-mediated please contact Project Engineer, Caleb Skjervem, (406) 582-4685.

Canyon: The transmission line upgrade project has been an on-going project the last few years and you can anticipate at least one more summer of work. The main scope of work took place between Hellroaring and Deer Creek. Once complete, the electrical lines will have a higher capacity and as the only source of energy into Big Sky that is a very good thing. The chances of power outages, brownouts, and various safety issues will also be decreased due to the new lines.

Enjoy this short window of time when there are no construction crews, when speed limits are not reduced and there aren't miles of cars heading to the ski hill!

Winter Parking

As much as we pray for snow in winter, it is important to remember that it can be rather dangerous when on roads. During winter, on-street parking poses a hazard as snowplows need full access to the road right-of-ways to properly clear and store snow. Vehicles parked on the street inhibit the snowplows flow and can create situations wherein the snowplow cannot safely clear snow from the roadway, creating a hazard for other motorists. Due to the early morning schedule for snowplowing vehicles should never be parked on streets overnight. Most roads in the BSOA jurisdiction are paved to 24 ft, allowing just enough space for vehicles to safely pass.

As a reminder for those of you who want to take a few laps on the ski-trails, parking is available in the Community Park and Lone Mountain Ranch. Please respect other residents, businesses, and snowplowing activities by refraining from parking on neighborhood streets and parking lots.

HAPPY HALLOWEEN!
